CTC Foundation Named as First Recipient of the Bottle Works Ethnic Arts Center's Artists' Hall of Fame Patron's Award

Johnstown, PA, October 26, 2010 – At an awards dinner to be held on Saturday, November 6, 2010, in Johnstown, PA, CTC Foundation will be inducted into the Artists' Hall of Fame at the Bottle Works Ethnic Arts Center. The Bottle Works Ethnic Arts Center's mission is to preserve and celebrate cultural diversity through the arts throughout the Johnstown region. For this year's Artists' Hall of Fame, a new category has been established for Patrons.

CTC Foundation, on behalf of Concurrent Technologies Corporation (CTC), and its affiliates is the first recipient of this award. CTC Foundation is being recognized for creating a legacy through support, as well as having a positive impact on the Arts.

Edward J. Sheehan, Jr., CTC Foundation Vice Chairman & CTC President & Chief Executive Officer, will be at the dinner to accept the award on behalf of the Foundation. "We feel a strong sense of corporate citizenship," Sheehan said. "Our support of the arts enhances the quality of life for the regions where we live and work. We are pleased to do that and are honored by the recognition."

In Fiscal Year 2010, CTC Foundation provided grants totaling $270,000 in community support throughout regions where CTC maintains offices or has employee presence. Collectively, more than 300 individual donations were made to over 200 charitable organizations and community operations in 15 U.S. States and internationally through worldwide charities. The grant distribution is diverse; $199,000 went to charitable groups, $38,000 to educational institutions, and $33,000 to the arts.

Conway B. Jones, Jr., CTC Foundation Chair, stated, "This award brings great honor and credit to the CTC Foundation. We strive to support our local communities in every way that we can. We are pleased that Mr. Sheehan will be accepting this award on behalf of the Foundation."
